In 2007, a group of young entrepreneurs, just barely out of college, quit their jobs working for a giant wine corporation and joined together to form a new type of wine company—on their own terms. With 168 cases of wine and a public storage unit, they started selling out of their cars. Guided by the mission of giving everyone the opportunity to do good through everyday actions, they turned a modest wine startup into one of the largest independent wineries in the country and have donated more than $3 million to local, national, and global causes.
